

| POSTAGE FREE IN THE UNITED STATES.  |         |
|---|---------|
| DAILY DISPATCH, One Year.....   | $ 2.00 |
| DAILY DISPATCH, Per Quarter.....  | .50     |
| DAILY DISPATCH, One Month.....  | .15     |
| WESTLY DISPATCH, One Year.....  | 1.00    |
| DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, 12 months.....  | 2.50    |
| DAILY DISPATCH, Including Sunday, 6 months.....   | 1.25    |
| SUNDAY DISPATCH, One Year.....  | .75     |
| WESTLY DISPATCH, One Year.....  | 1.25    |
| The DAILY DISPATCH is delivered by carrier at home per week, or by mail at special rates. |         |

This issue of THE DISPATCH contains 26 pages made up of THREE PARTS. Failure on the part of Carriers, Agents, Newsdealers or Newsboys to supply papers with a Complete Number should be promptly reported to this office.

Voluntary contributors should keep copies of articles. If compensation is desired the price expected must be named. The courtesy of returning rejected manuscripts will be extended when stamps for postage are enclosed. The Editor of THE DISPATCH will under no circumstances be responsible for the care of unsolicited manuscripts.

POSTAGE—All persons who mail the Sunday issue of The Dispatch to friends should bear in mind the fact that the postage thereon is Two (2) Cents. All double and triple number copies of The Dispatch require a 2-cent stamp to insure prompt delivery.

PITTSBURGH, SUNDAY, SEP. 20, 1903.

BIDDING FOR A GREAT MARKET.

It is not merely hospitable, but timely from a business standpoint, that the principal cities of the United States, Pittsburgh included, are preparing to give a hearty welcome to the visiting delegations from South America. But to suppose that when this is done everything in view has been accomplished, is to hug a singular delusion. Our South American friends will of course enjoy the trip; they will marvel much at what they see, reciprocate the compliments of the season, and return with the fact well forced on their minds that the United States is a busy, rushing place.

How to sell our goods to them is, however, a larger problem. The business men of Pittsburgh and of every other city which has a large foreign trade, are now busy preparing a regular steamship line to South America in the first instance. When that is done, they will have to send live, active agents to study the wants of the people and to drum up trade. Then they will find it profitable to produce articles specially fitted to the new markets.

British and German manufacturers and merchants are now working up the foreign fields with an energy never known before. They have got the means of regular transportation, and they have agents on the ground. The United States, on the other hand, has the advantage of proximity, of resources for manufacturing and of superior industry, once other conditions are equal. The most vital part of the programme rests with Congress. This country is now fairly awake to the advantages of trade with South America, and if occasion is taken by every city to express this perception when the delegates come along, by passing resolutions urging Congress to take steps for steamship communication, the legislators will not dissent from the national appeal. With adequate facilities for transportation, trade on a great scale would soon follow.

CAPTAIN JONES' DEATH.

The unexpected death of Captain W. R. Jones, from the injuries inflicted by the falling of the blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson Works, last Thursday, will be a subject of regret everywhere, and will be felt with especial keenness at Braddock. Captain Jones had long held the chief executive position at the great works which form that industrial community, and his energy, public spirit and ability in managing the army of workmen under his charge, had earned the confidence and admiration of all who knew him. The anxiety which had been caused by the first news of the accident had been allayed by reports of his favorable progress, and the fatal result was felt with additional poignancy by those whose hopes for his recovery had been revived. The loss to the people of Braddock is one that will not be easily replaced.

THE RIDING MASTERS' VERDICT.

It is rather difficult to decide whether of various citations by a New York newspaper of riding masters of that city, who all express the opinion that the occupation of a part of Central Park for the World's Fair would be destructive to their interests as making it unpleasant for ladies to ride in the park, is more amusing or more exasperating. It is possible that the instructors in the message comprise those who are able to express broad and valuable views on questions of public policy. But it is evident that if there are such members, they certainly should be able to rise beyond the level of discussing the question on the test of increased business for themselves or the contrary. There is also something about the funny and final in the proposition that the crowds which would assemble in order to observe an exposition of the industries of all nations, will be of the common and vulgar character which would be abhorrent to the delicate sensibilities of the ladies who patronize the riding masters of New York. The indications are that, neither riding masters, nor any other class of business will be troubled with the World's Fair, in New York. A city whose leading newspapers appeal to the professors of equitation for verdict upon public enterprises, is not an inviting field.

FLANN'S SENTENCE.

The sentence of the young man, Harry Flann, yesterday, to five years in prison for embezzling bank funds, while, as the Court stated, the minimum prescribed by law, is, nevertheless, sufficient to teach as salutary a lesson as if the term had been made a longer one. It was impossible to overlook the gravity of the case, or to regard only the plea for mercy, though for these, too, there is some foundation. Flann's years—here he had not yet reached his majority—and all the circumstances of his offending, raised the question whether he had ever given his pecuniary means thought beyond appropriate.

ating the money which came to his hand, spending it foolishly and exercising good influence in staving off discovery. It morally able to perceive the difference between a right and wrong of his proceeding, he seemed to have been singularly endowed with mental incapacity to perceive the sure consequences of his actions, or most strangely indifferent to them.

But while youth and inexperience are humanely taken into account in such cases, as Judge Acheson took them into account in Flann's case yesterday, even the minimum sentence, with the incidental suffering which the young man has undergone and must yet bear, should surely be enough to serve as a warning to those who, holding positions of fiduciary trust, are tempted to forget the ownership of the moneys under their hands.

It is creditable to the tens of thousands of very young men all over the country who are thus placed that it is rather seldom than otherwise that those who figure in court come from their number. Defalcations and embezzlements, rather more usually, the records would show, are the offenses of those of mature years, when the pressure of circumstances, the various hopes of success by speculation or the desire to keep up an appearance of fashionable living, working on a man of weak will and insufficient principle, tempt them to their ruin. Youth is generally buoyant, hopeful, even confident in the prospect of at least reaching fair success by honest, patient industry.

In these days it is often argued that the temptations to young men are more numerous than ever before; but if this be at all true, it is not less true that the business rewards for fidelity are also greater.

THE SUPREME BENCH APPOINTMENT.

The announcement that Hon. W. H. Miller is to go on the Supreme Bench comes from the senior partner of the late Indianapolis law firm besides those engaged in giving and receiving that important appointment. It may therefore be considered as authentic.

This permanent provision for the President's partner, who, before the election, was scarcely known to the general public, will, of course, stimulate the jeers of the opposition press at the good fortune which waits on the President's personal connections. Yet it is admitted that Mr. Miller has made one of the most creditable members of the present Cabinet, and certainly upon his elevation to the Supreme Bench his abilities and his known and his national reputation would more clearly established than was the case with the present Chief Justice at the time of his appointment by the previous administration.

The appointment would be a very commendable one, if it were not for its repetition of the old illustration as to the force which places successful corporate lawyers, nearest in the line of succession to the highest judicial honors.

RACING TO RUIN.

It is said that Belford, Clarke & Co., the publishers, attribute their failure to reprinting English novels at a steady loss to the fact that they were forced in self-defense to reprint English trash because other firms did it. If this really is the reason of their failure, Belford, Clarke & Co. are well out of business of any kind. A little boy might be pardoned for saying that he threw mud on his clothes because he saw other boys do it, but among men of business such an excuse is simply ridiculous. Incidentally it is a strong argument for an international copyright. For if American publishers could not steal the works of English authors, a favorite road to ruin would be closed to them.

Abundant as the publishers' argument is, and untenable as it must always be, we have heard it advanced by presumably intelligent men before. Railroad officers are still fond of declaring that they are forced to cut rates to a ruinous degree because other railroads have done so. We have heard of a glass manufacturer who cut his prices till they did not cover cost even because a competitor persisted in selling his product at a profitless price. So the Chicago book publishers have this precious excuse to put on their books that they could not sell because equally foolish men in the same trade were enamored with the same will-o'-the-wisp. Such a game of "follow my leader" to ruin is seldom seen.

TWO TRUSTS OPOSED.

Two features of the past week deserve public notice, both for their peculiar characteristics and for the bearing which they have upon a possible solution of the trust question. The first is the fact that the people of St. Louis, aroused by rumors of the beer trust, which is to control the output of beer in the country, and put up the price of beer, have organized competition of their own. They will brew their own beer to supply their own demands, and thus at once keep down the price of beer and maintain the size of the breweries. The one thing that arouses the independence of the St. Louis people is an attack upon the beer trust. Coal trusts, Standard Oil trusts, Cotton Seed Oil trusts, and other means of controlling the staples of food and light, are passed by with general denunciation in St. Louis; but when St. Louis beer is touched, specific measures are taken to preserve competition.

The example is also of value as showing how easily competition may be brought into the field against the trusts, unless they have some special lever, such as railroad discrimination, the possession of patents, or the control of a limited production, in order to choke off new competition. This is again illustrated in the case of the watch combination and its endeavor to crowd out of existence the makers of cheap watches, which refused to belong to the trust. The entire trade was at first concentrated in the work of freeing out the refractory concern. But there were no means of preventing the competing establishment from organizing its own agencies and establishing its own jobbing houses, and it has prospered under the attacks upon it, until the watch combination is now definitely announced as having gone to pieces.

It is worth while to set it down as a prime feature in the solution of the trust problem, that unless the combinations have some special hold, by which they are able to prevent their competitors from entering the field with them on equal terms, every attempt that they make to exact undue prices from the public will simply offer a premium for the establishment of new and effective competition.

WHEN THE WORLD'S AN EAR.

Count Thomas A. Edison says that the time is coming when the world will be one gigantic ear. The universal use of the phonograph will bring this about. The wonderful machine that records sound and reproduces it will be taxed with a tremendous task. Nothing like it has ever been known in the world before. Were the phonograph possessed of life and the sensibilities of man it would be entitled to pity. There will be many remarkable revelations of human character when the day of the universal phonograph shall arrive. The scandal-mongers everywhere will be brought into full publicity. It will no longer be safe for the cowardly backbiter to vent his malice in conversation. The woman who is given to sowing the seed of dissension among her neighbors will no longer scatter gossip in secrecy. And some who are supposed to be silent will be given a name for noise. Who shall escape in that day? Surely Senator Quay, say some, for he seems always to be preparing for the phonograph's coming. Perhaps it will be found that even he knows how to talk when circumstances are appropriate. A great many new voices will be found, and sincerity will prove to be a rarer quality than anyone dreamed of.

Some will hail the era with gladness. The gentlemen, in politics generally, who have already earned the fame of being all mouth will be delighted to have the world all ear. The world will fill their ideal then. The persecuted poet will no longer stand in awe of the editor's boot. He will murmur at his soul's imagining, by the wayside wherever he goes, and the world will know whether it wants to or not. The unhappy beings eternally haunted with grievances will have plenty of opportunity to air them. It will be a happy day for cranks of all sorts when all the world is an open ear.

THE PROPOSITION OF AN EMINENT BANKER

to have the Government coin the maximum of $4,000,000 of silver monthly, and retire the legal tender circulation with it expresses the passionate desire of some people to take away the currency that the people want and to force them to use that which they do not want. That is the only way to explain the appearance of a New Yorker with a proposition to lower the standard of values over 25 per cent.

The corner is at work in the English cotton market, and speculation is bemuddling the operation of legitimate business. Let us hope that the manipulators will get their fingers burned as severely as they deserve—in which case they will never handle any more corners.

The people who are negotiating $150,000,000 to $170,000,000 mortgages on railroads in this country should take notice, that two balloonists in Europe have had falls recently, and the shock killed them.

It is pleasant to learn that the Collector of New York is going to deal out scant considerations to a glass blower, when he first came to this country, swore that he did not come under contract, and afterward, upon quarreling with his employer, turned around and swore differently. The industry of running perjury on double turn is not so much needed in this land that we need imported labor for it.

The intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

Five years' imprisonment in the case of young Flann for stealing $36,000 and losing it, is not unduly severe; but it involves the wonder as to what would be an adequate sentence for the more successful operators who have stolen millions and kept them.

THE PITTSBURGH DISPATCH, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1903.

THE TOPICAL TALKER.

A Case of Mistaken Identity—When the Wind Whistles—Odds and Ends and a Voice From Ohio.

"You observed, didn't you, that that rather haughty-looking lawyer who passed us as second class did not bow to me?" Diamond asked me. "I had not noticed him," I answered. "I said I had noticed that the lawyer in question seemed unconscious of being in the vicinity of greatness."

"Well," continued my friend, "that lawyer bowed to me most obsequiously for over a year. I did not know him, from the side of a red bar, but as he dressed well and carried with him enough dignity to equip two dozen possums, I accepted his homage and returned the salute until one day we met in the Duquesne Hotel. As became a member of his call, when a friend of mine took me over to introduce me to some acquaintances, he came out on his hand in a deferential sort of way to me. I took it wonderfully, and my friend asked me: 'You know this man, do you?'"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I have the honor of Mr. Dalzell's acquaintance for some time. The persecuted poet will no longer stand in awe of the editor's boot. He will murmur at his soul's imagining, by the wayside wherever he goes, and the world will know whether it wants to or not. The unhappy beings eternally haunted with grievances will have plenty of opportunity to air them. It will be a happy day for cranks of all sorts when all the world is an open ear."

THE PROPOSITION OF AN EMINENT BANKER to have the Government coin the maximum of $4,000,000 of silver monthly, and retire the legal tender circulation with it expresses the passionate desire of some people to take away the currency that the people want and to force them to use that which they do not want. That is the only way to explain the appearance of a New Yorker with a proposition to lower the standard of values over 25 per cent.

The corner is at work in the English cotton market, and speculation is bemuddling the operation of legitimate business. Let us hope that the manipulators will get their fingers burned as severely as they deserve—in which case they will never handle any more corners.

The people who are negotiating $150,000,000 to $170,000,000 mortgages on railroads in this country should take notice, that two balloonists in Europe have had falls recently, and the shock killed them.

It is pleasant to learn that the Collector of New York is going to deal out scant considerations to a glass blower, when he first came to this country, swore that he did not come under contract, and afterward, upon quarreling with his employer, turned around and swore differently. The industry of running perjury on double turn is not so much needed in this land that we need imported labor for it.

The intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

Five years' imprisonment in the case of young Flann for stealing $36,000 and losing it, is not unduly severe; but it involves the wonder as to what would be an adequate sentence for the more successful operators who have stolen millions and kept them.

THE TRANSMISSION OF POWER BY ELECTRICITY

is an important and novel development of industry—for those localities that have plenty of water power.

A COMPLAINT is heard from the Hon. J. S. Clarkson that he has to work twenty-six hours a day. The whole progress of the work of decapitating Democrats has created an impression that the Hon. J. S. Clarkson was putting in about fifty hours of work daily. But he does not do it upon compulsion. The belief is that Mr. Clarkson is in the business just for the fun of the thing.

ALLEGHENY'S determination to locate its electric light plant in the old armory building on Marion avenue instead of in the parks, is decidedly wiser than to use park property for other purposes than that to which it was dedicated.

REALLY, however, after the things that Tanner had said, it is hard to perceive anything in that letter to Dalzell that required suppression on his account.

THE Chicago clergymen are announced to have a discussion pending as to whether there really is a personal devil or not. The question was supposed to be settled, in this country at least. The highest Governmental authority is prepared to ask on any other hypothesis than that that of a real lively personal Prince of Evil, the pension business ever got into this present muddle.

A KENTUCKY paper thinks it a singular thing that a river's head is not nearly as big as its mouth. Not at all. That is merely a quality which establishes the claim of the rivers to a leading place in politics.

It is asserted that the main spring of the Watch Trust is broken. At all events there does not seem to be any doubt that it has run down.

THE stoppage of the State work at Johnsonville will dead bodies are still being taken from the debris permits us to indulge in some salutary reflections on the results of refusing to take the obvious course of calling together the appropriating power and earning money enough to do the work properly.

WE are pained to observe that the eminent Mr. Depey has misled the good Colonel Shepard into publishing a quite too realistic description of the performances of the Turkish dancing girls at Paris.

THE Republican leaders who are falling outside the brackets of State conventions, this year, indicate an alarming list of casualties.

THE Hoosier incumbents of foreign consulates are having a hard struggle with the effete powers. Between Parisian policemen and London tailors their experience is likely to make them wish themselves back at the congenial labor of organizing the voters of the hoop-pole regions.

THE intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

THE TOPICAL TALKER.

A Case of Mistaken Identity—When the Wind Whistles—Odds and Ends and a Voice From Ohio.

"You observed, didn't you, that that rather haughty-looking lawyer who passed us as second class did not bow to me?" Diamond asked me. "I had not noticed him," I answered. "I said I had noticed that the lawyer in question seemed unconscious of being in the vicinity of greatness."

"Well," continued my friend, "that lawyer bowed to me most obsequiously for over a year. I did not know him, from the side of a red bar, but as he dressed well and carried with him enough dignity to equip two dozen possums, I accepted his homage and returned the salute until one day we met in the Duquesne Hotel. As became a member of his call, when a friend of mine took me over to introduce me to some acquaintances, he came out on his hand in a deferential sort of way to me. I took it wonderfully, and my friend asked me: 'You know this man, do you?'"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I have the honor of Mr. Dalzell's acquaintance for some time. The persecuted poet will no longer stand in awe of the editor's boot. He will murmur at his soul's imagining, by the wayside wherever he goes, and the world will know whether it wants to or not. The unhappy beings eternally haunted with grievances will have plenty of opportunity to air them. It will be a happy day for cranks of all sorts when all the world is an open ear."

THE PROPOSITION OF AN EMINENT BANKER to have the Government coin the maximum of $4,000,000 of silver monthly, and retire the legal tender circulation with it expresses the passionate desire of some people to take away the currency that the people want and to force them to use that which they do not want. That is the only way to explain the appearance of a New Yorker with a proposition to lower the standard of values over 25 per cent.

The corner is at work in the English cotton market, and speculation is bemuddling the operation of legitimate business. Let us hope that the manipulators will get their fingers burned as severely as they deserve—in which case they will never handle any more corners.

The people who are negotiating $150,000,000 to $170,000,000 mortgages on railroads in this country should take notice, that two balloonists in Europe have had falls recently, and the shock killed them.

It is pleasant to learn that the Collector of New York is going to deal out scant considerations to a glass blower, when he first came to this country, swore that he did not come under contract, and afterward, upon quarreling with his employer, turned around and swore differently. The industry of running perjury on double turn is not so much needed in this land that we need imported labor for it.

The intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

Five years' imprisonment in the case of young Flann for stealing $36,000 and losing it, is not unduly severe; but it involves the wonder as to what would be an adequate sentence for the more successful operators who have stolen millions and kept them.

THE TRANSMISSION OF POWER BY ELECTRICITY

is an important and novel development of industry—for those localities that have plenty of water power.

A COMPLAINT is heard from the Hon. J. S. Clarkson that he has to work twenty-six hours a day. The whole progress of the work of decapitating Democrats has created an impression that the Hon. J. S. Clarkson was putting in about fifty hours of work daily. But he does not do it upon compulsion. The belief is that Mr. Clarkson is in the business just for the fun of the thing.

ALLEGHENY'S determination to locate its electric light plant in the old armory building on Marion avenue instead of in the parks, is decidedly wiser than to use park property for other purposes than that to which it was dedicated.

REALLY, however, after the things that Tanner had said, it is hard to perceive anything in that letter to Dalzell that required suppression on his account.

THE Chicago clergymen are announced to have a discussion pending as to whether there really is a personal devil or not. The question was supposed to be settled, in this country at least. The highest Governmental authority is prepared to ask on any other hypothesis than that that of a real lively personal Prince of Evil, the pension business ever got into this present muddle.

A KENTUCKY paper thinks it a singular thing that a river's head is not nearly as big as its mouth. Not at all. That is merely a quality which establishes the claim of the rivers to a leading place in politics.

It is asserted that the main spring of the Watch Trust is broken. At all events there does not seem to be any doubt that it has run down.

THE stoppage of the State work at Johnsonville will dead bodies are still being taken from the debris permits us to indulge in some salutary reflections on the results of refusing to take the obvious course of calling together the appropriating power and earning money enough to do the work properly.

WE are pained to observe that the eminent Mr. Depey has misled the good Colonel Shepard into publishing a quite too realistic description of the performances of the Turkish dancing girls at Paris.

THE Republican leaders who are falling outside the brackets of State conventions, this year, indicate an alarming list of casualties.

THE Hoosier incumbents of foreign consulates are having a hard struggle with the effete powers. Between Parisian policemen and London tailors their experience is likely to make them wish themselves back at the congenial labor of organizing the voters of the hoop-pole regions.

THE intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

Five years' imprisonment in the case of young Flann for stealing $36,000 and losing it, is not unduly severe; but it involves the wonder as to what would be an adequate sentence for the more successful operators who have stolen millions and kept them.

THE TRANSMISSION OF POWER BY ELECTRICITY

THE TOPICAL TALKER.

A Case of Mistaken Identity—When the Wind Whistles—Odds and Ends and a Voice From Ohio.

"You observed, didn't you, that that rather haughty-looking lawyer who passed us as second class did not bow to me?" Diamond asked me. "I had not noticed him," I answered. "I said I had noticed that the lawyer in question seemed unconscious of being in the vicinity of greatness."

"Well," continued my friend, "that lawyer bowed to me most obsequiously for over a year. I did not know him, from the side of a red bar, but as he dressed well and carried with him enough dignity to equip two dozen possums, I accepted his homage and returned the salute until one day we met in the Duquesne Hotel. As became a member of his call, when a friend of mine took me over to introduce me to some acquaintances, he came out on his hand in a deferential sort of way to me. I took it wonderfully, and my friend asked me: 'You know this man, do you?'"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I have the honor of Mr. Dalzell's acquaintance for some time. The persecuted poet will no longer stand in awe of the editor's boot. He will murmur at his soul's imagining, by the wayside wherever he goes, and the world will know whether it wants to or not. The unhappy beings eternally haunted with grievances will have plenty of opportunity to air them. It will be a happy day for cranks of all sorts when all the world is an open ear."

THE PROPOSITION OF AN EMINENT BANKER to have the Government coin the maximum of $4,000,000 of silver monthly, and retire the legal tender circulation with it expresses the passionate desire of some people to take away the currency that the people want and to force them to use that which they do not want. That is the only way to explain the appearance of a New Yorker with a proposition to lower the standard of values over 25 per cent.

The corner is at work in the English cotton market, and speculation is bemuddling the operation of legitimate business. Let us hope that the manipulators will get their fingers burned as severely as they deserve—in which case they will never handle any more corners.

The people who are negotiating $150,000,000 to $170,000,000 mortgages on railroads in this country should take notice, that two balloonists in Europe have had falls recently, and the shock killed them.

It is pleasant to learn that the Collector of New York is going to deal out scant considerations to a glass blower, when he first came to this country, swore that he did not come under contract, and afterward, upon quarreling with his employer, turned around and swore differently. The industry of running perjury on double turn is not so much needed in this land that we need imported labor for it.

The intention of Mr. Labouchere to come over to the United States and write up our military and naval statistics, will justify the interviewers in carrying out their usual policy of doing exactly the same thing by Labby before he has been in the country for 24 hours.

The statement that "Private Dalzell's chances of office are disappearing" is calculated to raise anxious inquiries as to how that can disappear which never put in an appearance.

It is thought that the baseball championship will be settled by the Pittsburgh game this week, which, the baseball cranks aver, "places Pittsburgh in a proud and significant position." It cannot place her hired champions in any prouder position than that of second place from the bottom; and the significance of that position must be rather destructive of their reputation for playing ball.

Five years' imprisonment in the case of young Flann for stealing $36,000 and losing it, is not unduly severe; but it involves the wonder as to what would be an adequate sentence for the more successful operators who have stolen millions and kept them.

THE TRANSMISSION OF POWER BY ELECTRICITY

is an important and novel development of industry—for those localities that have plenty of water power.

A COMPLAINT is heard from the Hon. J. S. Clarkson that he has to work twenty-six hours a day. The whole progress of the work of decapitating Democrats has created an impression that the Hon. J. S. Clarkson was putting in about fifty hours of work daily. But he does not do it upon compulsion. The belief is that Mr. Clarkson is in the business just for the fun of the thing.

ALLEGHENY'S determination to locate its electric light plant in the old armory building on Marion avenue instead of in the parks, is decidedly wiser than to use park property for other purposes than that to which it was dedicated.

REALLY, however, after the things that Tanner had said, it is hard to perceive anything in that letter to Dalzell that required suppression on his account.

</